

2013 Student Housing Opportunities

for students attending Mesalands Community College

The Mesalands Area

Tucumcari, home of Mesalands Community College, was born out of a railroad construction camp in 1901 when the Rock Island Railroad was pushing a line toward the west coast. Merchants, gamblers, saloonkeepers, and dancehall girls from the rip-roaring cow town of Liberty dismantled their establishments and moved three miles south to take advantage of the payrolls of the hard-working, hard-playing railroad gangs. At first, the railroad camp was called Six-Shooter Siding.

Homesteaders arriving too late for free land in Oklahoma came to the mesalands area surrounding Tucumcari and, by 1907, there were twenty small towns scattered about the area. But it was a hardscrabble life for a dryland farmer during the Great Depression and the Dust Bowl Era. Most of the towns reverted to cow pastures.

The area owes its life to a dam across the South Canadian River which was authorized in 1935 and completed in 1940, bringing irrigation from Conchas Lake and the Canadian River to some 45,000 to 60,000 acres of farmland around the mesalands. As cow pastures were broken up and sold for irrigated farms, many of the ranchers were replaced by farmers.

The Campus

Mesalands Community College is situated at 911 South Tenth Street in Tucumcari, New Mexico, approximately 100 miles west of Amarillo, Texas, and 170 miles east of Albuquerque, New Mexico. Tucumcari, located in the eastern part of the state and surrounded by scenic mesas, is recognizable by its landmark, the 5,000-ft. butte known as Tucumcari Mountain. Interstate Highway 40 and U.S. Highway 54 converge in the city, making it a popular tourist site.

The campus of Mesalands Community College is positioned on 23 acres, with room for future expansion. The main campus is comprised of five buildings, with three additional buildings located at other sites off the main campus. Our peaceful campus is a low-crime community which has not had a crime-related incident since 2001. Although the College does not have formal dormitories, the College makes every effort to assist all students with their housing needs.

Message from the Vice President of Student Affairs

Welcome to Mesalands Community College. One important decision you will make as you enter college is where to live. The Student Housing Opportunities Directory is your primary source of information about options available in the local community. It lists contact information for apartments, motels, recreational vehicle facilities, as well as long-term lodging for those who qualify. We have also noted the link for the local newspaper's website which lists houses for rent.

Many local business owners are offering special pricing to Mesalands students. Most are available within a very short distance to the College. You should review each listing closely and view each as they relate to your specific situation. For example, a monthly rate for a double room (two beds) may be split between two students. Some offer full breakfasts or expanded continental breakfasts, Internet, swimming pools, laundry facilities, microwaves, small refrigerators, daily or weekly maid service, etc. These are some of the issues you might consider in making your decision.

Additional businesses in this directory are only able to offer daily rates. Those are listed separately from monthly opportunities for students. Before discounting daily rate options, you should consider whether you would like to move personal items into your room and keep them there throughout the semester, or if you will be there three or four nights per week and then go home over the weekend.

Since it is likely that housing will be needed for extended periods of time, students are encouraged to get to know their landlords and develop a relationship of communication and cooperation.

Best wishes in your educational pursuits.

Sincerely,

Aaron A. Kennedy, Ph.D.
Vice President of Student Affairs
